RISARC, a leading Healthcare Consulting and Technology company, announces the launch of its new corporate website at <http://www.risarc.com>

Richard Stephenson, President and Chief Executive Officer of RISARC, announces the launch of his company's newly expanded corporate website.

BURBANK CA – May 31, 2012 – RISARC has unveiled its new corporate website, <http://www.risarc.com>, as part of a launch celebrating 22 years of service in the healthcare industry. With new and exciting features, the website offers industry critical updates including announcements and emerging news stories while providing a central site for resource and information for healthcare professionals. Key areas of interest available on the website include 'How to reduce cost in healthcare' and 'Revenue cycle optimization opportunities'.

The website also provides a direct connect to the RMSe-bubble, a web-based system that providers use to send medical records and protected health information in real-time to insurers and other Health Information Exchange recipients. Providers currently use the system to send records for instances such as electronic claims attachment to Medi-cal's Fiscal Intermediary or to respond to additional documentation request (ADR) to Medicare RACs and MACs.

Said Stephenson, RISARC CEO: "We recognize that a company's website is the flagship for information about its enterprise. We are excited about the new website's features and functionality. It will be a useful source for new and existing clients. As the healthcare industry globally recognizes the benefits of the secure electronic movement and sharing of medical documentation, the website will be an all encompassing tool for providers – as a portal to information and a gateway to send information securely. It will also provide easy access to information about other RISARC 360^o Service and reflect how the company continues to lead the charge towards facilitating the industries needs during this transformational period in healthcare."
